

Helium Market Overview & Opportunity For Canada

Phil Kornbluth

Kornbluth Helium Consulting LLC

Summary

This presentation will start out by providing an overview of the global helium business, the current market situation and the outlook through 2025. The presentation will then take a more focused look at activity in Canada. The presentation will discuss the prerequisites for a successful helium project. It will then briefly discuss the technology involved with extracting helium from natural gas. The presentation will review how much helium is currently being produced in Canada, where activity is taking place and which companies are participating in the business. The presentation will then take a look at how helium production from Canada can be sold into the market. Finally, the presentation will provide a view on how the helium business in Canada might develop in the future.